Reports:

B&B:

Feb bash was a success. (Thanks Magnus.) Border War was hot and humid and fun, with lots of newbies, including from Stormhold (who wayfared for their first non-bash event.)

The next few months is looking busy. Especially leading to Congregatus, we would like to give some awards, and have their majesties give some as well: we and their majesties need recommendations!

Seneschal:

February bash – well attended, even though hot. Lists provided below.

@Lochac emails have not been getting through to me, verbal reports given, electronic reports to be added to minutes. Missing reports may be as a result of this issue.

Fencing:

Since the last meeting, 4 training sessions have been held on Monday nights with an average of 3 participants. These training have been based around skills training followed with free fencing. These have gone well with no injuries sustained.

Jason Medcalf was authorised and a number of newcomers are showing interest in potentially commencing training.

The Rapier Marshall has obtained the Barony's loaner kit and short term focus is the refurbishment of the loaner gear and authorisation of a number of newcomers.

Arts and Sciences:

Competitions:

Only one held so far to date. The still untitled year long comp. The first of our mini checkpoint competitions was run at the first monthly bash. This comp is free for the entrants to do what they please, the bigger and bolder the better. 9 people entered displaying and discussing their bold plans for the next 12 months. All that entered were enthusiastic and respectful. 2 projects stood out and were recognized in court by Lady Wynnfloed and Lady Sorcha. With Lady Sorcha taking the prize at the first checkpoint.

Classes:

Discussion with the populace started in regards to compiling a list of "master classes" they wish to see. With a view to have a regular series happening asap.

Regulars:

Monday night craft hall keeps on trucking forward.
Cooks guild met for the first time in a while making some lovely looking food stuffs.
Dancing happens on a regular basis with a good regular turnout.

Looking back:

My first couple of months have been good, enlightening and quiet. Everyone has been enthusiastic about strengthening the arts and sciences in the barony.

Looking forward:

I am still learning the role and getting to know what the general populace want and need. But I am hoping to make a strong and helpful community for all.

I am sure I have missed many things but hopefully I will get used to the role quickly.

Benedict of York.
